He says our people are a little wary and back-ward about "biting" at these, to us, new and advanced processes of civilization, and he did not pay expenses while here. He meets a feeling rather peculiar among our people-that this savors of "blood muney"—this life insurance business. But he is confident it is only a question of time to give true and correct information, and to get our people to ex-amine luto and think about it. He thinks already he sees signs that the low is melting and more favorable ideas permeating, and is quite sasured that his company will do a big bugidess here in the near future. A branch office will be established here, with Dr. F. B. Fits, as the medical examiner for the com-pany.
